Coral Ridge Mall – Service Yard infill for Ross
Project Overview

The project includes the proposed building infill of a service yard area of the exiting mall currently used as a service access to the food court. The existing food court is being removed and the food court space is being renovated to provide for a new Ross department store. There are existing water and sewer services within the existing utility easement that currently extends into the service yard that are planned to be removed. The applicant is requesting to vacate the utility easement that extends into this service yard to allow for the building infill of this service yard area.

Respectfully,
