I agree they need to have everything in place prior to getting a signed agreement. I do believe they should be allowed to apply and go to commission for approval prior to having documents in place. Once the commission has approved the application, then they would need to get everything before the formal agreement is provided. We continue to request that the applicants get their applications in early. If they get them 60-90 days in advance of the actual event, I do not see us requiring they have all their documents at that time. It would be a burden to require them to get insurance for example that far in advance of their event.

Jeff –

Upon my review of the below approved events, I see Wi Caribbean was sent to Commission for approval. Please see the attached email I sent you regarding missing important documents and an attendee count monitoring plan. Have you received these documents as of yet? In the second attached email, the promoter herself states she will not secure “licenses” until April 15th. If the organizer has not provided them then PD will be unable to provide security at the event. Please let me know ASAP. As we have discussed, PD will no longer support events being sent to Commission until all high liability paperwork is presented by the promoter and reviewed by Risk Management and PD to assure it is current, legitimate and in proper order.

Cole – until the necessary information is received, reviewed and approved by PD we do not support the entering into an event agreement with this promoter.

Thank you.
