Executive Summary

Background

The City of Fort Lauderdale engaged Segal Waters Consulting to evaluate the competitiveness of both pay and benefits for general employee positions. To gather this information, Segal Waters, in consultation with the City's Human Resources team, developed a customized survey instrument that was distributed to public sector employers found to be representative of its competitive labor market. Additionally, Segal Waters referenced published market data to represent the private sector. All data is effective as of February 1, 2017 and has been aged to April 1, 2018. Data is shown at the 75th percentile of market per the request of the City of Fort Lauderdale.

The thirty (30) peer employers selected for participation in the study are shown in Table 1. Of the thirty (30) surveyed employers, eleven (11) employers submitted both the pay and benefits sections of the survey, one (1) employer responded only to the benefits portion of the survey, and two (2) employers responded only to the pay portion of the survey. Segal Waters completed the pay portion of the survey for five (5) additional comparables, including the comparable mentioned previously who only submitted the benefits portion of the survey, based on job descriptions and pay data provided on the comparables' websites. As a result, Broward County, the City of Boca Raton, the City of Coral Springs, the City of Sunrise, the City of West Palm Beach, and Miami-Dade County will not be included in Table 12 through Table 49 as they did not complete the benefits portion of the survey. Overall, eighteen (18) employers participated in at least one portion of the survey providing a 60% response rate.

The study covers ninety-two (92) benchmark jobs, representing approximately 50%¹ of the City of Fort Lauderdale's workforce shown in Table 2. The benchmark jobs are listed by department in Table 3 and by occupational category in Table 5. To assist survey respondents in making job matches based on duties and qualifications rather than title, the survey instrument contained job summaries. The job summaries for each benchmark job are detailed in Appendix A.

Summary of Findings

This analysis is based on market data covering both the public sector, encompassing cities, counties, school districts, transportation entities, universities, and utilities, and the private sector. Public sector information was gathered through a custom market survey. Private sector information was derived from published data sources. The City of Fort Lauderdale's overall market position is based on an equal weighting of the two market sector averages and is relative to the 75th percentile of market.

Based on overall market data, including custom survey peer employers and published data representative of the private sector, the City of Fort Lauderdale's pay structure is at the market average at the pay range midpoint and maximum and below market at the pay range minimum. The City of Fort Lauderdale's market position is shown below in Table 6A as an overall to market, in Table 6B by department, and in Table 6C by occupational group.

We define market competitiveness as being between 95% and 105% of the market average at the minimum, midpoint, and maximum. Market comparisons that fall within this competitive corridor are noted in black, below 95% are noted in red, and above 105% are noted in blue.

We did find variation in the competitiveness of individual benchmark job titles (see Table 11). Overall, at the midpoint of the pay range:

- 39 benchmark job titles are below market (less than 95% at the midpoint)
- 34 benchmark job titles are at market (between 95% and 105% at the midpoint)
- 17 benchmark job titles are above market (above 105% at the midpoint)
- 2 benchmark job titles did not garner sufficient matches to be statistically significant

On a total compensation basis, taking into consideration base pay, employer health benefit costs, and retirement plan contributions, the City's market position relative to the base pay is increased substantially from 96% to 103%, as shown below in Table 7.

Overall, a total compensation analysis indicates:

- 20 benchmark job titles are below market (less than 95% at the midpoint)
- 39 benchmark job titles are at market (between 95% and 105% at the midpoint)
- 31 benchmark job titles are above market (above 105% at the midpoint)
- 2 benchmark job titles did not garner sufficient matches to be statistically significant

Health and retirement benefits used in the total compensation analysis reflect the Public Sector peer employers only.

Published Data Sources

Additionally, Segal Waters referenced three (3) published data sources to reflect private sector pay levels. The sources are:

Economic Research Institute (ERI)

The ERI Salary Assessor compiles pay data from hundreds of published data sources for thousands of job titles. The database is updated quarterly and provides salary information for nearly any geographic area in the United States. The information in this database reflects base salaries at the 10th and 90th percentiles, applicable to data sources and locations near Fort Lauderdale, Florida. The midpoint was calculated from the 10th and 90th percentiles. The geographic data cut used was Fort Lauderdale, Florida and the data was effective as of July 1, 2016.

Towers Watson Data Services, Compensation Surveys

Towers Watson Data Services publishes multiple compensation surveys throughout the year. We compiled data from Towers Watson's General Industry compensation surveys. This report reflects the 10th and 90th percentiles of base salaries and the midpoint was calculated from these percentiles. The geographic cut used was the Southeast Region. Due to general proximity, data was not geographically adjusted. The data was effective as of February 1, 2015.

Mercer US Benchmark Database Survey 2015

The 2015 Mercer Compensation Survey Report compiles pay data from over 3,000 organizations across a variety of industries throughout the United States. The information in this report reflects base salary and pay range data for all responding organizations in the Southeast region. This report reflects the 25th and 75th percentiles of base salaries and the midpoint was calculated from these percentiles. The data was effective as of March 1, 2015.

Data from the three published data sources above were aged to the data effective date of February 1, 2017.

Data Adjustments

Geographic Adjustments

To adjust for geographic difference in the cost-of-labor between the City of Fort Lauderdale and peer locations, we used the cost-of-labor differentials report by the Economic Research Institute (ERI) for each peer location.

It is important to note that the cost-of-labor differentials do not necessarily reflect cost-of-living differences. ERI has found that cost-of-living differences (which reflect the supply and demand for goods and services) are not a good predictor of salary levels. In other words, while the cost of housing (or other goods and services) in the City of Fort Lauderdale may differ from the cost of housing in another peer location by a certain percentage, the prevailing salaries may not differ by the same percentage. ERI emphasizes that – for adjusting salaries in a market study such as this one – the cost-of-labor differentials provide a more accurate method of determining whether employers are paying a competitive wage appropriate to a given geographic area.

The geographic adjustments applied are shown in Table 9. A negative adjustment means that the cost-of-labor in a comparator location is higher than in the City of Fort Lauderdale. For example, the cost of labor in the City of Boca Raton is higher than in the City of Fort Lauderdale, shown as -1.1%. Conversely, a positive adjustment means that the cost-of-labor in a comparator location is lower than in the City of Fort Lauderdale. For example, the cost of labor in the City of Miami is lower than in the City of Fort Lauderdale, shown as an adjustment of 0.1%.

Workweek Adjustments

Since workweeks sometimes vary across peer employers, we typically adjust Non-Exempt positions based on the reported pay ranges to be consistent with the City of Fort Lauderdale’s standard workweeks for employees; as shown below in Table 10, there were some differences in workweeks for the peer employers.

Study Findings – Base Pay

Pay Ranges - Overall

Based on overall market data the City of Fort Lauderdale’s pay structure is at the market average midpoint. We define market competitiveness as being between 95% and 105% of the market average. We did find variation in the competitiveness of individual benchmark job titles.

Specifically:

- 39 benchmark job titles are below market (less than 95% at the midpoint)
- 34 benchmark job titles are at market (between 95% and 105% at the midpoint)
- 17 benchmark job titles are above market (above 105% at the midpoint)
- 2 benchmark job titles did not garner sufficient matches to be statistically significant

Table 11 shows all benchmark jobs and their respective pay range market competitiveness based on the market data. “Insufficient Data” indicates that a specific benchmark job did not have three or more matches, as noted in the second column of the table. Segal Waters requires three or more matches for the data to be statistically significant; if a benchmark job does not garner enough matches Segal Waters will remove the position from analysis.

We collected data regarding most populous medical plan coverage, as well as prescription drug, dental, and vision benefits. Most of the peer employers offer a PPO medical plan. While all peers also offer other health-related benefits, the dental and vision programs are typically provided as a separate benefit election.

Survey Question: Please provide the following information for your most populous HMO, PPO, and HDHP health plan.

Study Findings – Total Compensation

The total compensation costs for each benchmark are the sum of the following:

- The calculated midpoint of the base pay range (average of the minimum and maximum base pay rates)
- Total employer costs for all health related benefits (medical, prescription drug, dental, and vision), weighted by City of Fort Lauderdale’s current enrollment distribution among coverage tiers across all plans
- The current total employer contribution associated with the defined benefit retirement plan
- Maximum employer contribution to both defined contribution and deferred compensation plans

As previously displayed in Table 7, the values in Table 50 show the City of Fort Lauderdale’s market position across all benchmarks and peer employers from a total compensation standpoint. Table 51 shows all benchmark jobs and their respective total compensation market competitiveness. “Insufficient Data” indicates that the job did not garner three or more matches. Market findings with three or more matches provide a more reliable indication of the City’s market position amongst the peer employers. Job matches are defined as a peer employer having a job comparable to the benchmark job.

Conclusions

Our conclusions cover the following areas:

- Pay Range Competitiveness
- Total Compensation Competitiveness

Pay Range Competitiveness

This study found that across the majority of benchmark jobs, the City's pay structure is at the market average at the pay range midpoint and maximum and above market at the pay range minimum.

Overall, at the midpoint of the pay range:

- The City's overall average pay range midpoint is 96% of the overall market average.
- 39 benchmark job titles are below market (less than 95% at the midpoint)
- 34 benchmark job titles are at market (between 95% and 105% at the midpoint)
- 17 benchmark job titles are above market (above 105% at the midpoint)
- 2 benchmark job titles did not garner sufficient matches to be statistically significant

Total Compensation Competitiveness

On a total compensation basis (taking into consideration base pay, employer health benefit costs, social security participation and retirement plan contributions) the City's average total compensation costs are:

- 103% of the overall market average

While the City's contributions to health care costs compared to its peer are below the overall market average at 71%, its retirement contributions are at market at 164% of the market average. On a Total Compensation basis, the City is at 103% of the overall market average.
